West Sacramento, Calif. GIS Manager's Workshop Focuses on Local Government

Goldsboro, N.C. – Geographic Technologies Group, Inc. (GTG) recently visited West Sacramento, California offering their GIS Manager's Workshop to GIS and IT professionals. The West Sacramento workshop was the highest attended workshop in the series of GIS Manager's Workshops that Curt Hinton and David Holdstock, owners of GTG, have hosted this year.

"This workshop is just what I was looking for," said an attendee of the popular workshop. "It was a 'grounding' class and will help our organization refocus our implementation efforts."

Topics covered in the workshop include Managing GIS, The Governance of GIS, The Enterprise Implementation of GIS, and The Business Case for GIS, all focusing on local government. Attendees learn how to successfully find the necessary funding for their GIS.

GTG also plans to hold the workshop in Olympia, Washington on September 3. In addition, a variety of other workshops and training courses will be offered in the near future, including Introduction to ArcGIS I and II, as well as department specific courses. Information on upcoming training opportunities can be found at www.geotg.com/training.
